Experience

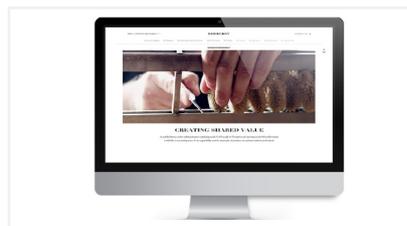

UX / UI Designer

Grace Milas Design Limited
2016 - Present

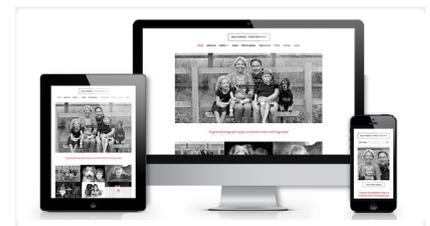

Since starting Grace Milas Design I have been working with small businesses and start ups to build engaging brands and online platforms. Working with brands from the start has seen my role expand into business advisory and strategic advice following thorough market research.

In addition to my own clients I have worked on contracts with larger agencies in London and the South of England. These roles have included Branding, UI design and UX design and range from private sector clients to retail and fashion.

Lead digital designer

PwC
2014 – 2016

At PwC I led the firms digital design capability in the UK and Global.

My primary role as a digital designer included designing user interfaces for some of the firms most high profile campaigns. In addition to the annual projects I designed the new user interface for the digital re-brand of PwC.

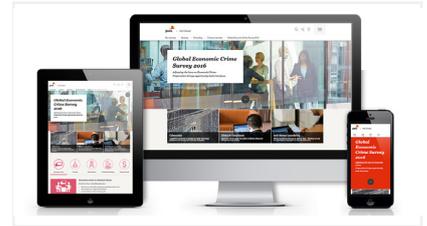

I also led the UX work-stream for the digital re-brand where I organised and facilitated a global team. Running stakeholder interviews, workshops and user testing I oversaw the research, analysis and implementation of the firms customer experience offering.

In addition, I ran a series of five 1 hour workshops aimed to share my digital expertise with the wider firm which led to me being recognised as a PwC role model for brand development and digital innovation.

Multi-discipline designer

Precedent
2012 – 2014

During my time at Precedent I worked on a variety of clients from a range of sectors including Education, Membership, Health, Finance and Third Sector. Projects varied from print design and branding to digital design for websites, apps and environments.

At Precedent I found my passion for user experience, working closely with UX consultants I learnt how to plan interviews and workshops, analyse research and user groups and design personas and user journeys.

I was often involved in proposals, working on concepts and presenting to stakeholders and CEOs at pitches. In 2013 my strong client relationships were recognised and I was made an account manager for two of our most valuable clients in the Education sector; West Herts College and University of Southampton.
